Here is an excerpt from Tammy's diary:

_"July 4, 1849

Today is the Fourth of July, and we are celebrating in style. We have been working hard all week, but we are taking a day off to rest and celebrate our country's independence.

We started the day with a breakfast of bacon, eggs, and coffee. Then we went to the town square, where there was a parade and a speech by the mayor. After the parade, we had a picnic lunch and listened to some music.

In the afternoon, we went for a swim in the river. The water was cold, but it was refreshing. We played games and swam until we were exhausted.

We ended the day with a bonfire and a sing-along. We sang songs about the Gold Rush, and we talked about our dreams for the future.

I am so grateful to be here in California. I am living my dream, and I am making a lot of money. I know that I will never forget this experience."_
