Doctor Who's lost episode, The Black Prince and the Sea Devils, is a fascinating mystery. The episode was the fifth serial in the show's 11th season and was originally broadcast in October 1973. Despite its status as a lost episode, The Black Prince and the Sea Devils has been reconstructed in various ways. In 1998, the BBC released an audio reconstruction of the episode, which featured the original cast members re-recording their dialogue. In 2003, a fan-made video reconstruction of the episode was released, which used animated stills and clips from the episode to recreate the story.
